Kraft

The 19-year-old Cantlay is considered a rising star with a promising future in the professional ranks. And after showing he can compete against professionals, including an appearance at the U.S. Open, Cantlay didn't take much solace in playing well at Erin Hills all week.

"You don't come to a golf tournament to finish second," said Cantlay, who had two extra-hole victories in the event but couldn't come up with the shots he needed Sunday with the title at stake.

Cantlay already was on the Walker Cup team headed to Scotland next month, and now Kraft will join him.

Immediately after the tournament, USGA officials announced that Kraft, Jordan Spieth of Dallas and Auburn player Blayne Barber had been added to the team.

Kraft found out he'd been added to the team right after he won.

"I just won the tournament, and then they told me this," he said. "I about had a heart attack."

All week long, Cantlay had dominated the 17th and 18th holes — including the first round on Sunday, when Cantlay won the last two holes to cut Kraft's lead from 4-up to 2-up going into the final 18 holes.

But when Cantlay took back-to-back bogeys on 15 and 16 in the final match, he couldn't make up for it.

"I threw away the golf tournament on 15 and 16, and wasn't able to recover on 17 and 18," Cantlay said.

He hit a birdie putt on the par-5 14th, taking a 1-up lead.

But Cantlay made a mistake on the par-4 15th, attempting to lay up with an iron shot on his drive — but instead putting it into a bunker, then skying his second shot over the green.

"I figured 8-iron would be short of the bunkers — but not when you pull-hook your 8-iron, it gets a big bounce," Cantlay said. "That was that."

Cantlay left a long par putt just short, and Kraft made par to again square the match.

Kraft was frank in his assessment of Cantlay's decision to lay up off the tee on 15, a hole that was playing short on Sunday.

"I thought it was a mistake," Kraft said. "I mean, that hole plays as a par 3 today. That's just not something I would have done."

Cantlay then missed a par putt on the par-3 16th after pushing his first putt well past the hole, allowing Kraft to take a 1-up lead. Cantlay missed his par putt on 18 and conceded the hole — and the match — to Kraft.

Kraft's college golf eligibility is up, but he has a year left of school at SMU and says he intends to get his sociology degree. He sheepishly admitted that his minds wasn't on academics at the moment.

"I have no idea what my classes are," Kraft said. "I sent all my teachers e-mails. I hope they're not going to see this, but I haven't looked at any of the syllabuses or anything. They're not going to be happy with me missing more school for the Walker Cup, either. It's OK, though."

Rays' Price strikes out franchise-high 14

TORONTO (AP) — David Price struck out a franchise-record 14 in seven dominant innings, Desmond Jennings hit a pair of solo home runs and the Tampa Bay Rays beat the Toronto Blue Jays 12-0 on Sunday.

Price (12-11) broke the team mark for strikeouts shared by Scott Kazmir and James Shields. Price allowed only three singles and walked two. Rays pitchers set a team mark by fanning 18 batters overall. Relievers Brandon Gomes and Cesar Ramos each struck out two.

Twins 11, Tigers 4

MINNEAPOLIS — Luke Hughes hit two home runs to help the Minnesota Twins take out their hitting frustration on Brad Penny and the Detroit Tigers, stopping a seven-game losing streak.

Hughes has gone deep three times in two games. He drove in five runs for the first time in his career, backing Brian Duensing (9-13) and sparking the Twins to just their fourth win against the Tigers in their last 19 meetings.

Orioles 2, Yankees 0

BALTIMORE — Rookie Zach Britton allowed four hits over seven innings, and the Baltimore Orioles extended their winning streak to a season-high six games by defeating the New York Yankees in the opener of a split doubleheader.

The Orioles had not won six in a row since April 2008.

game with New York, breaking a tie with Mickey Mantle for most in a Yankees uniform.

White Sox 9, Mariners 3

SEATTLE — Dayan Viedo made a sudden impact in his return to the majors, hitting a three-run homer in his season debut as the Chicago White Sox beat the Seattle Mariners for a sweep.

Tyler Flowers connected for his first career grand slam, helping Gavin Floyd (12-10) cruise to victory.

Viedo was called up from Triple-A Charlotte on Saturday when the White Sox placed outfielder Carlos Quentin on the 15-day disabled list.

Royals 2, Indians 1

CLEVELAND — Bruce Chen overcame a shaky first inning to win his career-high fifth straight start and led the Kansas City Royals over the Cleveland Indians.

Chen (10-5) allowed the first four batters of the game to reach base and walked Carlos Santana with the bases loaded to force in Cleveland's only run.

National League
Brewers 3, Cubs 2

MILWAUKEE — Zack

Greinke pitched effectively into the eighth to remain perfect at home, Corey Hart homered for the second time in as many days and the Milwaukee Brewers swept the Chicago Cubs with a 3-2 win on Sunday.

Greinke (13-5) improved to 10-0 at Miller Park and didn't allow a hit until Marlon Byrd's fifth-inning bloop.

Diamondbacks 6, Padres 1

PHOENIX — Ian Kennedy pitched seven effective innings to become the NL's first 17-game winner, Collin Cowgill hit his first career homer during a four-hit game, and the Arizona Diamondbacks beat the San Diego Padres for their sixth straight victory.

Cowgill hit a solo shot off Cory Luebke (5-7) in the second inning and added a run-scoring double off Erik Hamren in the eighth. Aaron Hill also homered off Luebke, his first since being traded to Arizona, and had three RBIs.

Astros 4, Giants 3 (11)

SAN FRANCISCO — Matt Downs delivered a go-ahead single with one out in the 11th inning and the Houston Astros beat the stumbling San Francisco Giants to salvage a four-game split.

Reds 5, Nationals 4

CINCINNATI — Joey Votto led off the 14th inning with his second home run of the game, lifting the Cincinnati Reds over the Washington Nationals.

Reds pinch-hitter Yonder Alonso opened the ninth with a home run off Drew Storen, making it 4-all. Votto hit a full-count pitch from Collin Balester (1-3) into the left-field bleachers to push the Reds over .500 for the first time since July 3.

Cardinals 7, Pirates 4

ST. LOUIS — Kyle Lohse went a workmanlike five innings for his 100th career win and the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Lohse (12-8) gave up four runs, two of them earned. He allowed six hits, struck out four and walked two.

Rockies 7, Dodgers 6

LOS ANGELES — Kevin Kouzmanoff drove in his first four runs since joining Colorado this week, and the Rockies needed five relievers to hold off the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Kouzmanoff blooped a three-run double in the first inning as Colorado took a 5-0 lead. He later singled home a run, and the six-year veteran tied a career high with four RBIs.

Sick dinner guest puzzled by hosts' silence

Dear Abby: I was at a party where guests were exposed to salmonella that was on one of the vegetables served as an appetizer. At least 11 people were affected by it. The hosts talked to only one or two of the people who were affected. Some of us were concerned that the hosts didn't contact everyone and warn them of what had happened.

Don't you think they had a responsibility to contact all their guests and advise them of the problem, and even express concern and apologies?

Sick in California

Dear Sick: Yes, I do. A responsible host would not only call to advise the guests and apologize to anyone who was affected, but also contact the manager of the store at which the vegetables were purchased. If the store isn't put on notice, it can't prevent other customers from buying contaminated produce.

Now that you know how little consideration your hosts had for the welfare of their guests, reconsider accepting another of their dinner invitations.

Dear Abby: "Amy" and I have been married seven years. I used to enjoy family gatherings with my parents and brothers, but I am finding them stressful. Amy always seems to have an issue with "time."

My family is easygoing and sometimes late for various reasons. Amy doesn't understand why this happens. Their tardiness bothers Amy, and she asked me to talk to my family members about it.

I did, and they don't see a problem. This is the way our family has always been. Amy stresses me out (high blood pressure runs on the male side of my family) when I should be enjoying these gatherings. Should she ease off, or should I ask my loved ones to change their ways?

Pressured in Toronto

Dear Pressured: You said you have already talked to your family about this. Because this is the way your family has always functioned, it is highly unlikely that they're going to change now. Sometimes you have to accept family, warts and all, and this appears to be one of them.

If Amy's complaining is truly causing your blood pressure to spike, your physician should be telling her to lower the "pressure" she's putting on you.
